Defender razor review

4.7/5The handle provides comfortable grip along with comfortable shaving with leaf spacing. We recommend that you try any comparison with the current sheets. I saw the Facebook ad for the razor defender and watched the video. It looked different from all the other cartridge razor clams, so I bit. I bought the handle with the cartridge included. I tried this morning thinking it would be a disappointment. Well, it turned out to be a mixed bag. The leaves are not as sharp as my injector blades and the feeling is not as smooth, but the final product is as good as the injector. I made three passes and a little tweaking in the usual posts. The handle had a good feel, but I thought it was a long time. The rubbery feel of the handle gave a good grip even with wet soapy fingers. The shave was good enough to try again tomorrow. Maybe again and again until the blade is no longer accessible. Will I give up my injector.....? Shave number 3 and the leaves felt much softer. He still gave an excellent shaving. It will continue to be used until the shaving quality is put below the acceptable level. Oh, what the hell. $4.95 and free shipping. I'm a game. I'll post it here after trying it out. Shave number 6 and I'm done. I think the Defender is a good shaving system, but by no means is it better than my Schick Injector. I think I'd make a good travel razor. I still wish the handle was shorter. It's better than a Mach 3. Only you can decide this, but I think they are about the same thing. The leaves are cheaper than Mach 3. I ordered one just for the heck of it sent from my iPad using Tapatalk I ordered one and tried it this morning. Compared to the Gillette Fusion ProGlide Power, there is more drag, but not enough to be uncomfortable. The cartridge is so thin that I was able to get up right under my nose (basically sticking an end in a nostril!). He gave it a soft shave without nick. The handle could withstand having a little more grip on it, but it wasn't slippery. It's very light, so it won't do any of the works for you. I'll have to try it a few more times before deciding if I want to get a leaf subscription. I totally forgot I tried this. I have a nice shave, but nothing to make me order more cartridges. When I'm in the mood for a cartridge shaving my Gillette Sensor still wins. I asked for a Defender. The space between the leaves seems like a very good idea. I've never cared about Sensor. Gillette reached the summit with Mach 3, and nothing they have thrown since has topped her off. I've had problems with rashes and crying with my DE and SE shaved, so I'm on a break from them. I used a Schick Hydro5 and I liked it. I tried Harry's razor from my wife. I like it a little better than Hydro5, except I don't like the handle. It can be a handle rubber, and may have holes for suspension, but with smooth shaving soaps, I have trouble holding on to it. I wrapped a silicone hairband of one of my daughters around the handle, and it works best. Once the Ombudsman arrives, I've trebled with a Shave number 6 and I'm done. I think the Defender is a good shaving system, but by no means is it better than my Schick Injector... Whew! The first defender shave was good. The space between the leaves makes it easy to rinse. I imagine it will be softer when shaving 2, but it was a good shave. Compared to Harry's razor clams? Harry is a very soft shave, and gives a great BBS shaving of 2 passes (and cleansing). The Defender's handle was much easier to grab than Harry's. I need more shaving with the Defender before I can compare the shaved ones to Harry's. I had a good BBS today, but I used 3 passes. I'm not doing any November shave, so I'm just shaving the bottom of my neck. The defender with Crema to shave off the bottom of my beard area is fantastic. I've used the Defender as a head shaving for the last couple of years. The spacing of the leaves prevents obstruction. It's the best razor I've ever found to shave my head off. 1st shaved a couple of days ago, and man what a horrible experience. He threw himself and threw himself and it looked like the leaves had chips on them. The shave wasn't close at all, it's the first time in decades that it had a shade of 5 o'clock. 3 shaved so far with the defender and still trows and pulls. And not as close to a shave as my month old mach 3 (daily, 2 passes) cartridge. I'll try to stop shaving with jeans before tomorrow shaving, but I'm very disappointed so far with this razor. The original and still the IMV reactions of the basket king: Liuu picked up one of these before going to official candidate school because I didn't think I'd have time to shave in the way I like. To travel, this with aveeno razor cream in really isn't bad. I have no irritation and it leaves me BBS every time. I think I like my routine. I still use it a few times a week if I had a rough shave with an DE or rectum and I like it better than any other cartridge razor. Op lost me with Facebook ad... I asked for a handle and a few leaves. Photos in the morning. It should be a good travel razor. These are customer reviews of the Razor Defender, taken from Facebook, by real customers who are using the defender razor.
